

BUSINESS STUDIES

Chapter 7: FORMATION OF COMPANY

FORMATION OF COMPANY

Introduction

Formation of a company is a long and complicated process. The first step involved in forming the company is the incorporation of the company. After the incorporation of the company, there are other procedures that are to be followed by the company before it can commence its business.

The formation of the company is very early and the initial stage. It involves a lot of legal formalities and procedures initially to be done. A company can only be formed once all the legal formalities are being done with the proper procedures. The authorities have the special powers and a system that has to be followed by each and every business organization for the commencement of its business.

For example: when an individual takes birth, its body parts are the immense element which is being formed before taking the birth, similarly, when a company is formed, before that it has its several aspects and parts which has to be build after which the company is taken into an account to commence its business:

- Promotion of a company
- Registration of a company
- Certificate of incorporation
- Commencement of business

❖ Promotion of a Company:

A business enterprise does not come on its own. The process of business promotions comes when someone comes up with an idea and ends when that idea is converted into the process of action. i.e. the formation of business enterprise and commencement of its business. It is an overall effort that the members of the company put to make the company.

The formation of a public company is a long and arduous process. First, the company is floated by its promoters, and the process of gathering financial backing begins. The promotion of a company is the very first step in this long process. Let us take a look.

It is the first stage in the formation of a company. It begins with a person or a group of persons having thought of or conceived a possible future business opportunity and then taking an initiative to give it a practical shape by way of forming a company. Such a person or a group of persons who proceed to form a company are known as promoters of the company.

Promoters not only conceive a business opportunity but also analyze its prospects and bring together the men, materials, machinery, managerial abilities and financial resources that are necessary for the formation and existence of the company.

❖ Formation of a Company:

Formation of a company involves completion of several legal formalities and procedures.

The process of formation of the company can be divided into four stages, viz.,

- Promotion of a company.
- Incorporation.
- Subscription of capital
- Commencement of business.

However, only a public limited company is required to fulfil all these four stages. A private limited company is required to fulfil only the first two stages. In other words, it can start business immediately after obtaining the certificate of incorporation.

❖ Promoter of a Company:

A successful promoter is a creator of wealth and an economic prophet. The person who is concerned with the promotion of the company, an enterprise is known as a promoter. He conceives the idea of starting a business and takes all the measures required for bringing the enterprise into the existence. For example, Dhirubhai Ambani is the promoter of Reliance Industries. The promoter finds out the way to generate the money, search business idea, arranges for finance, gather resource and establish a going concern. The company law has not given any legal status to promoters. He stands in fiduciary position.

❖ Functions of a Promoter:

- Identification of Business Opportunity: The promoter first identifies a potential business opportunity. This opportunity may be regarding the production of a new product or service or making a product available through a different channel than before or production of an old product with new updated features or any other such opportunity having an investment potential.
- Feasibility Studies: The promoter after having conceived a business opportunity analyzes the opportunity to see whether it is feasible, technically as well as economically. All identified business opportunities cannot be converted into real projects. Therefore, the promoters undertake detailed feasibility studies so as to investigate all aspects of the business that they intend to begin with the help of various tools like a study of the market trend, industry trend, market survey, etc. and with the help of specialists like engineers, chartered accountants etc. A venture is only feasible when it passes all the three below mentioned tests.
 - Technical feasibility: Sometimes an idea may be good and unique but technically not possible to execute because the required raw material or technology may not be easily available. Every business requires funds.
 - Financial feasibility: Sometimes it may not be feasible to arrange a large amount of funds needed for the business in the limited available means. Also, financial institutions may hesitate to grant huge amounts of loan for the new businesses.
 - Economical feasibility: A business opportunity may be technically and financially feasible but not economically feasible. It may not be a profitable venture or may not yield enough profits. In such a case, the promoters refrain from starting the business.

- Name Approval: Once the promoters have decided to launch a company next step is to select a name for the company and get it registered with the registrar of companies of the state in which the registered office of the company is to be situated. An application with three names, in the order of their priority, is filed with the registrar to get the name approved.
- Fixing up Signatories to the Memorandum of Association: The promoters decide upon the members who will be signing the Memorandum of Association of the proposed company. Usually the signatories of the memorandum are the first Directors of the Company. However, the written consent of the persons signing the memorandum is required to act as Directors and to take up the qualification shares in the company.
- Appointment of Professionals: Promoters are also required to appoint certain professionals. These professionals help them in the preparation of necessary documents that are required to be filed with the Registrar of Companies such as mercantile bankers, auditors, lawyers, etc.
- Preparation of Necessary Documents: The promoters are required to prepare necessary legal documents that have to be submitted to the Registrar of the Companies for getting the company registered. These documents are return of allotment, Memorandum of Association, Articles of Association, consent of Directors and statutory declaration.

❖ Registration of a Company:

It is the registration that gives the company a birth or existence. A company is properly formed when it is properly registered under the Company Act. There is a procedure for the registration process that every organization must follow. It involves the following documents and procedures,

- Memorandum of Association: It is to be signed by the minimum member that is 7 persons for the public company and 2 in case of private company. It must be duly stamped.

The following clauses are included in the MoA:

- Name Clause: This section contains the name of the business that has already been approved by the Registrar of Companies.
- Registered office clause: It specifies the state in which the company's registered office is proposed to be located. Although an exact address is not required, it must be provided to the Registrar within thirty days of the company's formation.
- Object's clause: This specifies the reason for the company's formation. A firm is not legally permitted to engage in any action that is not related to the objectives set forth in this clause.

- Liability clause: This clause restricts the members' liability to the amount owed on the shares they own.
 - Capital clause: This clause establishes the maximum amount of capital that the company may raise through the issuance of shares. The proposed company's permitted share capital, as well as its partition into the number of shares with a fixed face value, is defined.
 - Subscription Clause: The subscription provision, which is the sixth and last clause of the MOA, shall declare the subscribers' intent to incorporate the company and agree to take shares in the firm based on the number stated in the Memorandum.
- Articles of Association: The document is signed by all those persons who all have signed the memorandum of association.
 - List of directors: A list of directors with their names, address, and occupation is prepared and filed with the registrar of the companies.
 - Written consent of the directors: A written consent of the directors that they have agreed to act as directors has to be filed with the registrar of the company along with a written approval to the effect that they will take the qualification shares and will pay for them.
 - Notice of the address of the registrar office: It is also customary to file the notice of the address of the company's registered office at the time of incorporation. It is to be provided within 30 days after the date of incorporation.
 - Statutory declaration: A statutory declaration mentioning that the requisites of the act and the rules thereunder have been compiled. It must be signed by an advocate of the supreme court or of a high court or an attorney or leader entitled to appear before a high court or a practicing chartered accountant in India, who engages in the company formation or by a person indicated in the article as a director, managing director, secretary or manager of a company. It is also to be filed with the registrar of the company.

Basis	Memorandum of Association	Articles of Association
Objective	Memorandum of association defines the objects for which the company is formed.	Articles of association are rules of internal management of the company. They indicate how the objectives of the company are to be achieved.
Position	This is the main document of the company and is subordinate to the companies Act.	This is a subsidiary document and is subordinate to both the memorandum of association and the companies act.
Basic	Memorandum of Association	Articles of Association

Relationship	Memorandum of association defines the relationship of the company with outsiders.	Articles define the relationship of the members and the company.
Validity	Acts beyond the memorandum of association are invalid and cannot be ratified even by unanimous vote of the members.	Acts which are beyond articles can be ratified by the members, provided they do not violate the memorandum.
Necessity	Every company has to file a memorandum of association.	It is not compulsory for a public limited company to file articles of association. It may adopt table A of the Companies Act.
Alteration	Alteration of memorandum of association is quite difficult and in many cases, approval of certain statutory authority is required.	Articles can be altered by passing a special resolution by the members.

❖ Certificate of Incorporation:

The registration of the memorandum of the association, the article of association and other documents are filed with the registrar. After getting satisfied with the application & documents submitted, Registrar will issue the Certificate of incorporation'. A certificate of incorporation is the ultimate proof of the existence of a company.

❖ Effect of the Certificate of Incorporation:

- The date inscribed on the Certificate of Incorporation marks the beginning of a company's legal existence.
- On that date, it becomes a legal entity with eternal succession. It gains the ability to enter legally binding contracts.
- The Certificate of Incorporation is indisputable documentation of a company's regular incorporation.

❖ Certificate of Commencement of Business:

As soon as a private company gets the certification of incorporation it can start its business. Once the certificate of incorporation is received by the company, a public company issues a prospectus for inviting a public to subscribe to its share capital. It fixes the minimum subscription in the prospectus. Then it is required to sell the minimum number of shares mentioned in the prospectus.

After completing the sale of the required number of shares, the certificate is sent to the registrar along with the letter from the bank stating that all the money is received.

The registrar then scrutinizes the documents. If all the legal formalities are done then the registrar issues a certificate known as 'certificate of commencement of business'. This is the conclusive evidence for the commencement of business for the public company.

❖ Capital Subscription:

- SEBI clearance is required to raise funds from the public. The Registrar of Companies will receive a copy of the prospectus or a statement in lieu of the prospectus. Bankers, brokers, underwriters, and other professionals are hired.
- A request for approval to trade in shares or debentures must be made to the stock exchange.

❖ Process of Capital Subscription:

• SEBI Approval:

- SEBI (Securities and Exchange Board of India), our country's regulatory body, has developed recommendations for information disclosure and investor protection.
- A public firm seeking funding from the public must make full disclosure of all relevant facts to potential investors and must not withhold any material information.

• Filing of Prospectus:

- Section 2(70) of the Companies Act of 2013 defines a prospectus as. "Any document that is described or issued as a prospectus" is how a prospectus is defined. This includes any notification, circular, advertisement, or other document that serves as an invitation to public offers.
- The Registrar of Companies receives a copy of the prospectus or a statement in lieu of the prospectus. A Statement in Lieu of Prospectus is submitted with the Registrar of Companies (ROC) when a company does not issue a prospectus to the public for the subscription of the shares.
- All of the directors or their authorized agents must sign the declaration in writing. It's similar to a prospectus, with the exception that it's only a few pages long.

• Appointment of Bankers, Brokers, Underwriters:

- Raising money from the general people is a huge undertaking. The money for the application will be received by the company's bankers.
- The brokers try to sell the shares by handing out application forms and pushing others to apply. If the public does not subscribe to the shares, the underwriters promise to buy them.

❖ Minimum Subscription:

- To prevent enterprises from starting into business with insufficient resources, the company must obtain applications for a particular minimum number of shares before proceeding with the issuance of shares. This is referred to as the 'minimum subscription' under the Companies Act.

- If the number of applications for the shares received is less than 90% of the issue size, the allocation cannot be made, and the application money must be refunded to the applicants.

❖ Application to Stock Exchange:

- At least one stock exchange is approached for approval to trade in its shares or debentures.
- If such approval is not obtained within ten weeks of the subscription list's closing date, the allotment becomes worthless, and any money received from applicants must be returned to them within eight days.

❖ Allotment of Shares:

- The money received for the application should be kept in a separate bank account and not used by the company until the shares are distributed.
- If the number of shares allocated is fewer than the number applied for, or if no shares are assigned to the applicant, any excess application money must be returned to the applicants or applied to allotment money owed to them.
- Successful allottees receive their allotment letters. Within 30 days of allotment, a 'return of allotment' signed by a director or secretary is filed with the Registrar of Companies.

Future's Key

Fukey Education

Class : 11th Business Studies
Chapter- 07 : Formation of a Company

Important Questions

Multiple Choice Questions-

Question 1. The dividend payable to _____ shareholders is payable on fixed figure or percent

- (a) Equity
- (b) Non-preference
- (c) Preference
- (d) All of the above

Question 2. A company is known as the _____ company of another company if it has control over that other company.

- (a) Subsidiary
- (b) Holding
- (c) Controlling
- (d) Statutory

Question 3. A private company means a company which has a minimum paid up capital of Rs. _____

- (a) 1,00,000
- (b) 5,00,000
- (c) 50,00,000
- (d) None of the above

Question 4. The Prospectus must be issued to the public within _____ days of its date.

- (a) 30
- (b) 60
- (c) 90
- (d) 100

Question 5. _____ means the total amount of called up capital on the shares issued and subscribed by the shareholders on the capital account.

- (a) Called-up capital
- (b) subscribed capital
- (c) nominal capital

(d) Paid-up capital

Question 6. Par value of shares means the _____ value of the shares

(a) Actual

(b) face

(c) Market

(d) dividend

Question 7. Among the following which documents are not mandatory to be submitted to the registrar along with an incorporation application by a private company.

(a) Address of Registered office & undertaking

(b) Undertaking and statement of capital

(c) Statement of capital & list of directors

(d) List of directors and statement of capital

Question 8. The articles of association need to be signed by

(a) All proposed directors

(b) Registrar

(c) Subscribers of memorandum

(d) None of the above

Question 9. "Men may come and men may go but the company exists"- this explains which characteristics of the company as per companies Act 1956.

(a) Separate legal entity

(b) Perpetual Succession

(c) Capacity to sue

(d) None of the above

Question 10. _____ cannot give an invitation to the public to subscribe for any shares in or debentures of the company

(a) Subsidiary company

(b) Statutory Company

(c) Private company

(d) Registered company

Question 11. A proposed name of a Company is considered undesirable if

- (a) It is identical to the name of an existing company
- (b) It resembles closely the name of an existing company
- (c) It is an emblem of the Government of India, the United Nations, etc.
- (d) In case of any of the above

Question 12. Application for approval of name of a company is to be made to

- (a) SEBI
- (b) Registrar of Companies
- (c) Government of India
- (d) Government of the State in which Company is to be registered

Question 13. The application for registration of a company should be presented to the _____ of the state appointed under Companies Act 1956

- (a) Controller
- (b) Registrar
- (c) Governor
- (d) Registration officer

Question 14. Powers, rights, remuneration, qualification, and duties of directors are discussed clearly in

- (a) Memorandum of Association
- (b) Articles of Association
- (c) Prospectus
- (d) None of the above

Question 15. Private company prohibits any invitation or acceptance of deposits from persons other than its _____

- (a) Members
- (b) directors
- (c) Partners
- (d) Banks

Very Short-

QUESTION 1 State the three stages in the formation of a company.

QUESTION 2 Define the formation of the company.

QUESTION 3 In a company, who is known to be the first directors of the company?

QUESTION 4 When a company is legally born?

QUESTION 5 How many members should sign a memorandum of association in a public company?

QUESTION 6 How many members should sign a memorandum of association in a private company?

QUESTION 7 What do you mean by Technical feasibility?

QUESTION 8 What do you mean by Financial feasibility?

QUESTION 9 What do you mean by Economic feasibility?

QUESTION 11 What do you mean by promoter?

Short Questions –

Question 1. Explain briefly the meaning of promotion of a Company.

Question 2. Draw up the various stages of formation of the company.

Question 3. Explain briefly the various types of promoters.

Question 4. A promoter has various qualities. Explain in brief.

Question 5. Define 'Memorandum of Association' and 'Articles of Association' as these are public documents.

Question 6. What is 'Statement in lieu of Prospectus*?'

Long Questions –

Question 1. What is the procedure adopted for the alteration of various clauses of Memorandum of Association?

Question 2. Explain the various contents of Article of Association and its alteration.

Question 3. What is Prospectus? Mention its importance and various important contents.

Question 4. What is a misleading statement in a prospectus and give its consequences? to a statement made by him.

Answers

MCQ Answers-

1. Answer: (c) Preference
2. Answer: (b) Holding
3. Answer: (a) 1,00,000

4. Answer: (c) 90
5. Answer: (a) Called-up capital
6. Answer: (b) face
7. Answer: (a) Address of Registered office & undertaking
8. Answer: (c) subscribers of the memorandum
9. Answer: (b) Perpetual Succession
10. Answer: (c) Private company
11. Answer: (d) In case of any of the above
12. Answer: (b) Registrar of Companies
13. Answer: (b) Registrar
14. Answer: (b) Articles of Association
15. Answer: (a) Members

Very Short Answers –

1. Answer: The three stages in the formation of a company are.

- Promotion
- Incorporation
- Subscription of a company

2. Answer: Formation of a company is complicated and include multiple stages of legal formalities and procedures. The formation process comprises of three stages promotion, incorporation, and subscription of a company. Unlike public limited companies, private business is restricted to raise funds from the public, and also they don't require to issue a prospectus to complete the formalities.

3. Answer: In a company, the promoter decides who will sign the memorandum of association of the proposed company. Whoever signs the memorandum, they will also be the first directors of the company.

4. Answer: The date when the certificate of incorporation is printed, a company is legally born.

5. Answer: A minimum of seven members should sign a memorandum of association in a public company.

6. Answer: Only two members are required to sign a memorandum of association in a private company.

7. Answer: Technical feasibility means analyzing an idea which may be great but technically impossible to execute. It could be because of the desired raw material or technology is not easily available.

8. Answer: Fund is an essential element while planning to start a company. The promoters have to estimate and arrange the funds properly for the desired company. If the promoters fail to arrange the funds, then the plan has to be dropped.

9. Answer: A plan or a project can be technically and financially feasible, but the outcome of it being profitable is very limited.

10. Answer: A promoter is a person who has control over the operation of a company directly, indirectly or as a shareholder. According to his advice, the director or the board members of the company takes the decision.

Short Answers –

1. Answer: Meaning of Promotion: The term promotion is used as the sum total of activities by which a business enterprise is brought into existence. It is a term of business, not of law. Promotion consists of the business operations by which a company is established.

It is the process of planning and organising the finances and other resources of a business enterprise in the corporate form. According to C.W. Gerstenberg, "Promotion is the discovery of business opportunities and the subsequent organisation of funds, property and management ability into business concern for the purpose of making profit therefrom."

Promotion is the process of the discovery of a business idea, its investigation and assembling of necessary resources to set-up a business as a profitable concern. The person or group of persons who perform the work of promotion and form a company as a going concern are known as a promoter. A promoter is an entrepreneur or businessman who gives birth to a business concern. A promoter may be an individual, a firm or a company.

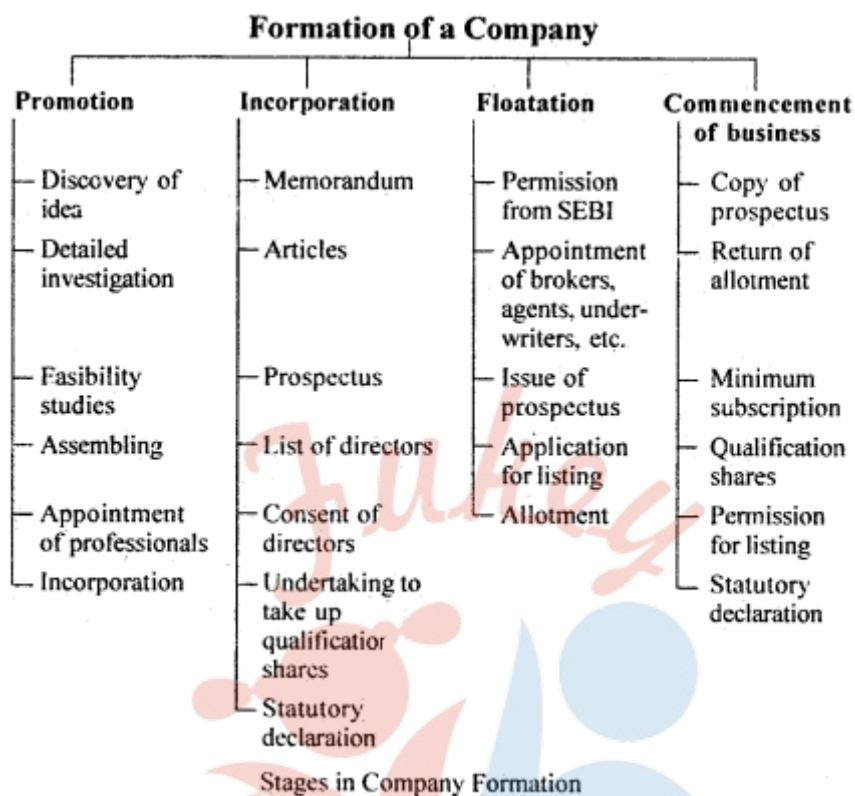

According to S. Francis Palmer, "Promoter means a person who originates the scheme of promotion of the company, has the Memorandum and Articles prepared, executed and registered and finds the first directors, settles the terms of preliminary contracts and prospectus (if any) and makes arrangements for advertising and circulating the prospectus and the capital."

Thus a promoter is a person or a group of persons who conceive the idea of the formation of a company, and takes necessary steps for its incorporation, raising of capital and making it a going concern. In order to perform the task of promotion successfully, a promoter must have several essential qualities. Fertile imagination, sound judgement, initiative, resourcefulness and organising ability are the main qualities of a successful promoter.

Promotion may be done for several objectives, e.g. to start a new business, to expand an existing business or to take over an existing business. Out of this starting, an altogether new business is the most difficult task.

2. Answer:

3. Answer: Types of Promoters: Promoters can be of the following kinds:

1. Entrepreneur Promoters: An entrepreneur conceives the idea of a new business and performs all the work for establishing it as a going concern. He continues to manage and control the business promoted by him. Small-scale enterprises, such as sole proprietorships and partnerships are promoted by entrepreneurs. He undertakes risk and takes initiative in promoting the company.

2. Professional Promoters: These promoters are specialists in promoting new business ventures. Large-scale enterprises are generally promoted by experts. These experts possess the necessary skills and knowledge in the promotion. They promote a business as a going concern and then sell the proposition or hand-over its management and control others.

These promoters are interested only in looking out for business reality. He needs to be action-oriented. He will assemble resources, prepare necessary document give a name to the company opportunities and converting them into business units in return for handsome remuneration. There are very few professional promoters in India. They initiate new enterprises and find out the persons who can supply capital.

3. Occasional Promoters: This type of promoters promote a business once a while rather than on a regular basis. Promotion is not their main job and after promoting a company they go back to their original occupation. For example, an engineer or a technical expert may promote a business to commercially exploit a patent or invention discovered by him. They manage the company's affairs even after incorporation of the company.

4. Financial Promoters: These promoters float new companies during favourable conditions in the securities market. Banks and other financial institutions also perform the work of promotion owing to their experience in the financial sector. Investment bankers become active in the field of promotion when the securities market is able to absorb new issues of equity shares. In India, the Industrial Development Bank of India and other financial institutions carry out the work of promoting industrial concerns.

5. Government: Nowadays, the government has become the biggest promoter. For example, the Government of India has established several basic, strategic and defence industries to speed up the process of economic development in the country. It has promoted large-scale enterprises in iron and steel, coal, shipping, fertilisers, electronics, engineering, insurance, tourism, hotels, etc.

4. Answer: Qualities of a Promoter: A promoter should possess the following qualities.

1. Vision: A promoter requires a sound imagination and a clear but realistic view of the future. He analyses the prospects of a company and brings together the men, materials and machinery.
2. Alert mind: The promoter should be alert enough to notice business opportunities that can be used to advantage. An invention, a patent, a natural resource, an unsatisfied or poorly satisfied need are examples of such opportunities.
3. Resourcefulness: A promoter should be able to mobilise financial, human and physical resources so as to
4. Risk-taking ability: The promoter should be able to bear the calculated risks of the business. Sometimes, an idea may be good but technically not possible to execute.
5. Tact: A promoter needs to be tactful so as to persuade people to invest money in the new venture.
6. Patience: Considerable patience is necessary to wait till the business idea takes a practical shape. Sometimes, it so happens that a project is technically feasible and viable, but chances of it being profitable are very little, the idea may have to be adopted later by investigating into details which require patience.
7. Analytical ability- The promoter should be able to carefully examine each idea and opportunity in terms of costs and benefits.

5. Answer:

Memorandum of Association: The Memorandum of Association is the principal or most important document of a company. According to Lord Macmillan, “The Memorandum of Association sets out the constitution of the company. It is, so to speak, the charter of the company and provides the foundation on which the structure of the company is built. It enables persons, who deal with the company, to know its permitted range of activities.” In the words of Lord Cains, “the Memorandum of Association of a company is its charter and defines the limitations of the power of the company established under the Act.

The Memorandum contains the fundamental conditions upon which alone the company is allowed to be incorporated.” It also lays down the scope of operations of the company beyond which it cannot operate. The purpose of the Memorandum of Association is to enable the shareholders, creditors and others who deal with the company to know its permitted range of activities. In fact, it can be considered as the foundation on which the structure of a company is based. Its primary importance lies in the fact that a company cannot undertake such operations which are not mentioned in its memorandum.

Great care should be taken in preparing the Memorandum of Association because a company cannot go beyond the limits laid down in the Memorandum.

The Memorandum of Association must be

- (a) printed,
- (b) divided into suitable paragraphs numbered in sequence, and
- (c) signed by the required number of persons in the presence of at least one witness.

The Memorandum must be published in sufficient numbers because it is a public document and a copy has to be given on demand and at a nominal charge. The facsimile and common seal of the company should be filed on the Memorandum. The Companies Act contains different forms of Memorandum (in Schedule 1), one each for companies limited by shares, companies limited by guarantee without shares capital, and unlimited company.

In brief Lord Justice Browen, “a Memorandum of Association is a fundamental document of a company which is also known as the charter of the company. It lays down the object and scope of activities and limitations on the power of a company beyond which the company cannot go. It is a document which contains all conditions upon which a company is allowed to be incorporated.

Articles of Association: Articles of Association are the bylaws of a company. They contain rules and regulations for the management of the internal affairs of a company. They define the mode and manner in which the company’s business is to be carried on. Articles of Association are public document. Outsiders dealing with the company are supposed to have read the Memorandum and Articles of the company. They are entitled to believe that the company conduct its business according to the rules and regulations. This is known as the Doctrine of Indoor Management.

A private company, a company limited by guarantee and an unlimited company, must prepare and file their own Articles of Association. But a public company limited by shares may adopt Table A in the First Schedule of the Companies Act, in case it does not want to prepare and file its own Articles of Association. While preparing the Articles great care should be exercised.

Anything contained in the Articles which is against the Memorandum of Association or against The Companies Act shall be null and void. The Articles of Association should be printed, properly divided into paragraphs, consecutively numbered and signed by the signatories to the Memorandum in the presence of at least one witness. The Articles of Association are subordinate to the Memorandum of Association.

6. Answer: Statement in lieu of Prospectus: A public company having a share capital may sometimes decide not to approach the public for securing the necessary capital because it may be confident of obtaining the required capital privately. In such a case, it will have to file a 'Statement in lieu of Prospectus' with the Registrar. A 'Statement in lieu of Prospectus' is drafted in accordance with the particulars set out in "Schedule III" of the Companies Act. It contains information very much similar to a prospectus:

It must be duly signed by all the directors and a copy thereof must be filed with the Registrar at least three days before the allotment of the shares. However, a private company is not required to either file "Prospectus" or a "Statement in the lie of Prospectus" with the Registrar. 'Statement in lieu of Prospectus' must be dated and signed by each director. It should not contain any untrue or misleading statement. Provisions regarding the penalty for issuing a misleading prospectus are also applicable to untrue details given in a statement in lieu of prospectus. A private company is not required to file either a prospectus or a statement in lieu of prospectus as it is not permitted to raise funds.

Long Answers –

1. Answer: Alteration of the Memorandum: The Memorandum of Association can be altered in accordance with the procedure laid down in the Companies Act.

The provisions of the Act are as follows:

1. Alteration of Name Clause: A company can change its name in the following manner.
 - (a) If the name registered is identical with or similar to the name of an existing company, bypassing an ordinary resolution and obtaining written approval of the Central Government;
 - (b) Bypassing a special resolution and obtaining the written consent of the Central Government in other cases.

It may be pointed out and delete that the word 'private' to the name of the company does not require the approval of Central Government. But where the addition of the word 'private' becomes essential due to the conversion of a public company into a private company, such conversion is effective only with the approval of the Central Government.

2. Alternation of Registered Office Clause: This clause can be altered in the following ways.

- (a) If the registered office is to be shifted from one state to another, bypassing a special resolution and obtaining the sanction of the Registrars of both the states;
- (b) If the office is to be shifted from one town to another in the same state, bypassing a special resolution;
- (c) If the office is to be shifted from one locality to another in the same town, bypassing an ordinary resolution.

The Registrar of Companies shall register the confirmation of the change of registered office and the alteration made in the memorandum of association within 30 days from the date of filing the documents of change.

3. Alteration of Object Clause: In order to alter its object clause, a company must pass a special resolution and obtain the permission of the Company Law Board.

The Company Law Board must satisfy the following conditions before granting permission:

- (a) The objections, if any, of the Registrar of Companies have been obtained.
- (b) Sufficient notice has been given to every creditor and other persons whose interest may be affected by the proposed alteration; and
- (c) With respect to every creditor either his consent has been obtained or his debt has been discharged.

An alteration in the object clause is permissible if it is necessary to enable the company

- (a) To carry on its business more economically or efficiently;
- (b) To enlarge the area of its operations;
- (c) To carry on some other business which can be profitably combined with the existing business;
- (d) To amalgamate with any other company or association;
- (e) To attain its main purpose by new or improved means;
- (f) To restrict or abandon any of the objects specified in the Memorandum; and
- (g) To sell or dispose of the whole or part of the company's property.

A special resolution must be passed at a general meeting of the company for alteration of the object clause. The resolution must state reasons or purposes for doing so.

4. Alteration of Liability Clause: If a company wants to make an alteration which imposes any additional liability on its members, it must pass a unanimous resolution in a meeting of its members. The liability of the members automatically becomes unlimited if their number is reduced below seven in case of a public company and below two in a private company. The liability of members may be increased if the members agree in writing consent may be given either before or after the alteration.

5. Alteration of Capital Clause: A company must pass a special resolution and obtain the approval of the Company Law Board. In case the capital is to be reduced, the permission of the court is also required. The court may direct that the company must write the words 'reduced' after its name and all the official documents of the company will bear this word. Where the alteration involves the return of capital or reduction in uncalled capital, the consent of creditors must be obtained.

A company may reduce its capital in the following ways:

- (a) By extinguishing or reducing the liability of members for uncalled capital;
- (b) By paying off some part of capital;
- (c) By writing off or cancelling any paid-up capital which is lost; and
- (d) By any other method approved by the court.

A company may alter its capital to:

- (a) Increase the amount of share capital;
- (b) Consolidate the divide its capital into shares of higher denominations;
- (c) Subdivide the shares into those of smaller denominations;
- (d) Cancel the unissued capital;
- (e) Convert fully paid shares into stock or vice versa; and
- (f) Reduce the amount of share capital.

6. Alteration of Subscription Clause: In this clause, the subscribers declare that they desire to be bound to assist information of a company and no subscriber can withdraw his name on any ground after registration of the company.

2. Answer: Articles of Association: The Articles of Association of a company contain the rules relating to the management of its internal affairs. The articles define the duties, the rights and the powers of the Board of Directors as between themselves and the company at large, and the mode and form in which the business of the company is to be carried on, and the mode and form in which changes in the internal regulations of the company may be made.

Articles of association contain the rules angulations for regulating the internal affairs of the company. The subscribers of the memorandum may include in it all such regulations as they deem fit. But everything included in it must be subject to the Companies Act and Memorandum of Company.

A public company limited by shares may opt for the adoption of Table A (i.e. the model set of 99 articles given in Schedule I of Companies Act). The other types of companies are required to file their articles of association along with the Memorandum at the time of registration. The Articles of Association should be printed, divided into paragraphs and numbered consecutively, and signed by each signatory to the memorandum in the presence of at least one attesting witness.

Contents of Articles of Association: The Articles of Association usually contain the provisions relating to the following matters:

1. The amount of share capital and different types of shares.
2. Rights of each class of shareholders.
3. Lien on shares, forfeiture of shares for non-payment of calls and transfer and transmission of shares.
4. Procedures for conduct of meetings, voting, quorum, poll and proxy.
5. Appointment, removal and remuneration of directors and their powers and duties.
6. Procedure regarding alteration of share capital.
7. Matters relating to the distribution of dividend.
8. Matters relating to the keeping of statutory books.
9. Procedure regarding the winding up of the company.
10. Adoption of preliminary contracts.
11. Redemption of preference shares.
12. Rights of members.
13. Borrowing powers.
14. Reserves and capitalization of reserves.

Alteration of Articles: A company may change its Articles of Association by passing a special resolution subject to the following conditions.

1. The alteration must not be contrary to the Memorandum and the Companies Act. The alteration should not allow the company to do something which is forbidden by the Memorandum.
2. It must be bona fide and in the interest of the company as a whole.

3. It must not result in a breach of contract with outsiders.
4. The alteration must not purport sanction anything illegal or against public policy.
5. It must not have the effect of increasing the liability of members.
6. It should not amount of fraud by the majority on the monetary. Any alteration which constitutes the discrimination of interest of minority is a fraud on them.
7. If the alteration involves converting a public company into a private company, the approval of the Central Government must be obtained.

3. Answer: Prospectus: The purpose of issuing a prospectus is to acquaint the investors with the proposed company and induce them to invest in its shares. The law with a view to protecting the interest of investors regulates the issue and the contents of the prospectus.

A prospectus means “any prospectus, notice, circular, advertisement or other document inviting deposits from the public or inviting offers from the public for the subscription or purchase of any shares or debentures of a company.” The term “Prospectus”, therefore, includes any document which invites deposits from the public or invites offers from the public to purchase shares or debentures of a company.

The essential elements of a prospectus are as follows:

1. There must be an invitation to the public.
2. The invitation must be made “by or on behalf of the company”.
3. The invitation must be “to subscribe or purchase its shares or debentures or such other instruments”.
4. Every prospectus issued must contain the matters specified by the provisions of the Companies Act.

Importance of Prospectus: Investors make up their minds about investment in a company primarily on the basis of the information contained in the prospectus. Therefore, there must not be a misstatement in the prospectus and all significant information must be duly disclosed.

The prospectus of a company serves the following purposes:

1. It reflects the future policies and programmes of the company.
2. It serves as an invitation to the public to subscribe to the shares and debentures of the company.
3. It provides a legal document of the terms and conditions on which shares and debentures have been issued.
4. It identifies the persons who can be held responsible for any untrue statements made in it.

Contents of a Prospectus: Prospectus is the only document through which the prospective investors can evaluate the soundness of the company.

It must contain at least the following broad particulars:

1. Company's name and address of its registered office, nature of business of the company.
2. The main objects of the company and other objects.
3. The number and classes of shares, if any, and the nature and extent of the interest of the holders in the property and profits of the company. Rights attached to the shareholders are also mentioned.
4. The details about the redeemable preference shares intended to be issued, if any, i.e., the date and mode of redemption etc, details regarding debentures also if any.
5. Qualification shares of directors, if any.
6. Any provision in the articles as to the remuneration of the directors, managing director or otherwise.
7. The names, addresses, and occupations of the directors, managing director or manager.
8. The "minimum subscription" that is, the minimum amount which, in the opinion of directors must be raised by the issue of shares.
9. The time of the opening and closing of the subscription list.
10. To amount payable on application and allotment of each class of share.
11. Rights, privileges and restrictions attached to each class of shares.
12. A reasonable time and place at which copies of audited balance sheets and profit and loss accounts of the company may be inspected.
13. Names and addresses of auditors, bankers, brokers and solicitors.
14. Names and addresses of underwriters and commission payable to underwriters.

4. Answer: Mis-statement or untrue statement in the prospectus: If a prospectus contains misstatements or omits material facts, it will give rise to many consequences. A misstatement or an untrue statement is one which is misleading in the form and context in which it has been included in the prospectus. A prospectus shall also be deemed to have an untrue statement if the omission of any matter from it is calculated to mislead those who act on the faith of the prospectus.

Consequences of Misleading Prospectus: If a prospectus contains misstatements, the aggrieved party will have remedies against the company, directors, promoters and legal experts. A prospectus must be prepared very carefully. In an effort to influence the investors, a company may make exaggerated statements about its operations and future prospects. But a prospectus must contain full and honest disclosure of all material facts. To avoid preparing a misleading prospectus, it should be ensured that material facts are not concealed and no false details are given.

The persons responsible for issuing a misleading prospectus face civil and criminal liability.

1. Civil Liability: If the prospectus contains false information or incomplete details due to the negligence of the directors, it amounts to misrepresentation. The persons who invest money in the company on the basis of such misrepresentation have the right to avoid the contract and claim refund of their money. They can also claim damages from the company and from those who have authorised the issue of a misleading prospectus. An aggrieved subscriber of shares or debentures may sue directors, promoters etc. for payment of loss or damages caused to him by the misrepresentation in the prospectus issued. Subscriber must prove that he has suffered loss by reason of the omission of a matter from the prospectus.

A person accused of misrepresentation in a prospectus can avoid liability if he proves that:

- (a) He had withdrawn his consent before the issue of the prospectus and that it was issued without his consent or authority;
- (b) The prospectus was issued without his knowledge or consent and he had given reasonable notice to this effect after he came to know about it;
- (c) After the issue of the prospectus but before allotment, on becoming aware of the misrepresentation, he had withdrawn his consent and given public notice to that effect;
- (d) The statement was based on the statement of an expert who had given his consent to it;
- (e) He genuinely believed the statement to be true; or
- (f) The statement was based on an official document.

The directors etc., however, will not be liable for the compensation of loss, if it is proved that they honestly believed the statement to be true.

2. Criminal Liability: If the directors of a company deliberately, conceal information, they are punishable with a fine extending to Rs. 5,000 or imprisonment up to two years or both. If the public is fraudulently induced to invest money, the penalty may extend to a fine of Rs. 10,000 or imprisonment of five years or both.

A person accused of deliberate or fraudulent misrepresentation may avoid his liability by proving that:

- (a) The statement was immaterial; or

(b) He had reasonable grounds to believe and did believe that the statement was true.

An expert who has given his consent to issue the prospectus containing an untrue statement made by him shall be liable to every subscriber who takes shares on the faith of his statement. The aggrieved shareholder is entitled to claim damages under the general law i.e. Contract Act. An expert shall not be liable if he proves that he was competent to make the statement and that he had reasonable ground to believe that statement was true at the time of allotment of securities. Expert includes an engineer, a valuer, an accountant and any other person whose profession gives authority.

Fukey Education